

“There will be no secrets between us!” Sarah gets talked into agreeing to make this promise to her group of girlfriends. It’s not long before she realises that although she has definitely experienced a great deal this summer, she doesn’t feel much like revealing every last detail to the gang. Especially the fact that she has a big-time crush on Sam – that would be way too embarrassing! But then one day Sam accidentally hits a ball on her head in the swimming pool. She ends up seeing stars, and gazing into the most gorgeous blue eyes in the world...
